

FUNDRAISING AT WORK

*Looking for some ideas to boost your office fundraising?
Well, look no further...*

BAKE SALES Get everyone to channel their inner Mary Berry, and sell their wonderful creations. Maybe make an office Bake Off out of it, to add an element of competition!

COFFEE MORNING Pop the kettle on, buy some pastries, and suggest your lovely colleagues donate. It's a little bit of chill time out of a busy day at work.

TALENT SHOW It might surprise you what weird and wonderful talents your colleagues have—put on a talent show to showcase the all singing, all dancing talent of your office.

DRESS DOWN DAY For a £1.25 donation, your colleagues can wear whatever they want to work. Jeans and a t-shirt or your favourite onesie, the comfier the better!

SWEAR JAR Have an office wide profanity amnesty, every swear word spoken means £1.25 in the pot!

GUESSING COMPETITION How many sweets are in the jar?
Whose embarrassing baby photo is this?

END OF WEEK JUKEBOX Charge people to play a tune of their choice in the office on Friday afternoon.

One25
For women to heal and thrive

CHRISTMAS PARTY Hold a raffle or auction at your Christmas party. Make a spectacle of it by using helium balloons to hold each raffle ticket—people pop theirs at the end of the night to see what they've won!

LAST FRIDAY LOTTO Sell lotto tickets to colleagues or customers once a month. Split the proceeds 50/50 between the winner and One25.

JAIL AND BAIL Set up a mock jail in a high profile area at work, such as the canteen or reception. Arrange for several unsuspecting managers or senior members of staff to be “arrested”, served with a warrant and thrown into the jail. Issue them with internet access and a phone and allow them to make pledge calls to friends and coworkers to earn their bail. Make sure you have the permission of your overall boss!

STEP CHALLENGE Everyone in the office pledges to walk 10,000 steps a day (or more, if you're feeling super healthy!) and do so for a month. Every day you don't hit the target—a small donation in the pot!

COME DINE WITH ME Each week, a different person could bring in a homemade dish for everyone's lunch. Everyone pays what they would for a lunch out, but that money gets donated to One25. Better yet, give people scores on what they bring and crown an overall office Master Chef!

One25
For women to heal and thrive